FOUR TIMES CONDEMNED.

A Murderer Who Has Three Times Had His Sentence Revoked, Finally Fixed.

Msgr. Satolli Vested with High Powers—A Frenchman's Fifty Day Fast.

Cuba Wants to Farm Out Her Customs, the United States Strongly Object.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 5.—Ed. Hallinger, three times sentenced to death for the murder of his wife two months ago, and whose neck was saved as many times by his counsel, was arraigned before Judge Werts this morning and for the fourth time was sentenced to death. The date fixed by Judge Werts is Thursday, Dec. 22, which is in accordance with the prosecutor's wishes, and his statement that he would have Hallinger hanged before Christmas. Hallinger's lawyer will now apply for a writ of error which the court says is suggested by the text of Justice Shira's decision. It will probably be denied, and he will then take an appeal which will act as a stay. Hallinger did not show as much bravado as the last time. He was cool and reserved and evidently places great confidence in his lawyer's statement that he will not be hanged.

The United States Object.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It is reported that the United States government will interfere with the scheme of Cuba to farm out its customs revenues to a French syndicate which has long been bidding for the privilege. It had been rumored for some time that the Spanish government was anxious to lease the Cuban custom house at a good figure, but the details of the negotiations as well a their progress were kept a profound secret. It now appears that Secretary of State Foster has sent a diplomatic note to the authorities at Havana warning them that the United States government is strongly opposed to the plan of farming out the Cuban custom house in the manner above described. Mr. Williams, consul-general at Havana, who was recently in New York on leave returned to Cuba on Saturday, before the term of his vacation had expired. It is presumed that he carried with him the note of Secretary Foster to the Spanish government. The action of our government in this matter may occasion an interesting and important controversy, as it is not probable that Spain will relinquish its plan of farming out the Cuban customs without a struggle. The profits to be obtained by such an arrangement would, it is claimed, be very great.

For the Sake of Science.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 5.—Arthur W. Wullemeas, a Frenchman, to-day commenced a 50 days fast under the auspices of the Western Reserve Medical College. He has been training for the ordeal for two weeks, the training consisting of a thorough rubbing down early in the morning, followed by a walk of three hours and close confinement to his room for the rest of the day. His refreshments while training have been confined to two cups of cocoa and an oatmeal wafer daily. By this means he has brought himself down from 140 to 122 pounds, and he expects to lose 25 pounds during his enforced fast, or half a pound daily. This is his third experiment in the same line. Two years ago he abstained from food for 21 days in Chicago, and later in the same year for 20 days in Detroit. Last year he starved himself for 46 days in New York city, and early in the present year in Paris he abstained from sustenance for 50 days. The present task is undertaken at the instance of Dr. C. G. Weever, dean of the college mentioned, and is in the line of a medical experiment.

Covicted of Murder.

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 5.—The appeal of Carlyle W. Harris, the young medical student now confined in the Tombs under conviction of murder in the first degree for poisoning his child wife, Helen Potts-Harris, is before the court of appeals to-day. Howe & Hummell appear for the condemned man, and District Attorney Nicoll and Assistant District Attorney Stapler for the defense. Harris was convicted a year and a half ago after a prolonged trial, the evidence in the case being largely circumstantial and technical. The appeal is based on the ground that the verdict was absolutely against the weight of evidence. The arguments in behalf of the condemned man fill a bulky volume of nearly fifteen hundred printed pages. If the decision of the court of appeals is against him Harris will take a seat in the electrical chair next month.

Advocates of Reformed Judaism.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A special session of the central conferences of American Rabbis, which is largely composed of advocates of reformed Judaism, opened here to-day, for the especial purpose of considering the report of the committee on ritual. It is understood that this report declares strongly in favor of the reformation of the liturgy and the Hebrew ritual. The question is one of vital importance to the sect, as the orthodox Jews regard as next to sacrilege every effort to make even a minor change in the ritual which has come to them by inheritance. The conference will be in session throughout the week, and will endeavor to find some middle ground upon which both the orthodox and reform Jews can come together.

The Behring Sea Commission.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—After twenty-two years of service as a district judge of the United States, Judge Blodgett today severs his connection with the judiciary. In a few days he will leave for Washington preparatory to entering upon his duties as a member of the Tribunal of Arbitration on the Behring Sea controversy between the United States and Great Britain. His associates of the American council are Hon. Edward J. Phelps, ex-minister to England, and Hon. J. C. Carter. The joint tribunal will not assemble until the coming March, but it will require several months for the arbitrators to familiarize themselves with the facts and issues of the case.

Conductor Bywater has already identified three of those under arrest.

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 5.—Tommy Givin, night barkeeper at the Opera House saloon in Livingstone, was killed last night by a gambler named Chas. Bloom, because he would not lend him $5, the barkeeper protesting but he had but $1, and offering that amount. Bloom started in to abuse Givin. A fight ensued and the gambler fired three shots, the last one into his back as he was retreating, having been wounded by the first. The murderer is under arrest.

SCANDAL IN THE SCHOOLS.

Revelations Soon to be Made Regarding the School Book Trust.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—War is to be declared upon the school book trust. For months past a large number of opponents of this great monopoly have been engaged in gathering facts and figures concerning its methods and its hundred and one plans of operation, both in the past and at the present time. In this task they have been aided by publishers who were frozen out when the trust was brought into existence, and by agents and travelling men who are personally familiar with the pernicious schemes that have been employed to control the school book field of the country.

The investigation is not yet completed, in fact it is hardly half way through, but sufficient has already been developed to promise the expose of one of the greatest scandals of modern times. The developments promise to affect two-thirds of the states in the Union, and cities and towns, and townships and school districts in those states, until the ramifications are so extensive, so interwoven one with another, as to seem almost beyond unravelling.

It has been learned beyond peradventure that boards of education and school trustees running up into the hundreds, if not thousands, as well as prominent politicians who are able to influence such bodies are reckoned as part and parcel of the trust's machinery, and that the amount expended annually to ensure their fealty reaches an enormous total.

In some towns where, in consequence of a large number of schools and scholars, the demand for books of instruction is so large as to be in itself a highly lucrative business, there are educators whose financial transactions with the trust ensure them a good-sized yearly income. Other cases have developed where school trustees have given orders for supplies heavy enough to last the year with the understanding with the agent that the goods should never be delivered, but that the bills should be presented and paid in the regular order, the trustees securing a liberal proportion of the "swag."

Those who are at the bottom of the investigation will not say when they propose to make a move and whether it will be through the courts or otherwise, but they declare that they are in the fight to stay, and insist that the exposure when it is ready for publication will be one of the most remarkable on record. One result of the movement, it is expected, will be the destruction of the present monopoly in school books by which the parents of every child in the United States attending the public schools are taxed three times the legitimate price for the necessary supplies.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

From the Canadian Gazette.]

It will be remembered that when a deputation of the Imperial Federation League went to the late Prime Minister last year with a request that he should summon a second Imperial Conference, it was necessary to have some propositions to lay before them, and he invited the League to furnish the Government with such material. This is what the present report essays to do. The committee has endeavored to lay down a series of propositions defining the precise object to be aimed at, the essentials of any scheme of what is called Imperial Federation, and the means by which the desired object may be attained. The main propositions of the report are the following:—

ESSENTIALS.

The essentials of a United Empire may be thus briefly defined:—

(a) That the voice of the Empire in peace, when dealing with foreign powers, shall be, as far as possible, the united voice of all its autonomous parts.

(b) That the defense of the Empire in war shall be the common defence of all its interests and of all its parts, by the united forces and resources of all its members.

AN IMPERIAL COUNCIL OF DEFENCE.

In order that the Empire may speak with the greatest authority to foreign nations, there ought to be a body in which all its autonomous parts are represented.

In order that the voice of the Empire may be supported in peace, and the common defence of the Empire assured in war, its resources must be combined. This entails, as regards its self-governing portions, both a representative body and common property in the means of defence.

The primary requirements of combined defence are a sea-going fleet and naval bases.

CHARACTER OF THE COUNCIL.

It being admitted that some central body is essential, the questions arise:—

(a) How shall a Council of the Empire be constituted?

(b) By what means can the resources of the Empire be most effectively combined?

In reply, the following propositions are submitted:—

The Council should consist of members appointed by the United Kingdom and the self governing Colonies.

The three great groups of self-governing Colonies—North American, Australian and South African—should be directly represented in the Council. India and the Crown Colonies would be represented through Her Majesty's Secretaries of State at present charged with the administration of their affairs, and in such other manner as might become desirable.

The Council might include—on the part of the United Kingdom, the Indian Empire and the Crown Colonies—the Prime Minister, the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, War, Colonies, and India, the First Lord of the Admiralty, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer; and on the part of the self-governing Colonies, of representatives of the three groups. Such a Council should deal with Imperial defence; it might receive such information relating to matters of foreign policy as would enable it to deal adequately with questions of defence; in matters of defence the Council should supervise the appropriation of any moneys provided for the defence of the Empire by the common contribution of the United Kingdom and Colonies.

COLONIAL CONTRIBUTIONS.

As all parts of the Empire enjoyed the benefits of Imperial defence, they should contribute to its cost. In the case of India and the Crown Colonies, the United Kingdom would continue to be responsible for all matters relating to their respective contributions. There was no reason to doubt that, if the necessities of the case were made clear, the colonies would be prepared to take their share in the cost of the general defence of the Empire, provided that they were given a proper share in the control and expenditure of the common fund. The method of raising contributions would probably, by general consent, be left at the outset to the choice of the individual self-governing states. But future developments might disclose a means of raising the necessary contributions upon some uniform principle throughout the Empire, by the allocation to this purpose of special sources of revenue or otherwise.

A ROYAL COMMISSION.

In order to ascertain the views of the different Colonies enjoying responsible government as to securing the unity of the Empire and meeting the responsibilities of Imperial defence, the Governments concerned should be invited to send representatives to a conference summoned ad hoc. Such conference ought not, however, to be formally convoked until Her Majesty's Government had satisfied themselves that the moment was opportune, and that a favorable reception of any proposals they might make might reasonably be looked for. It was possible that a preliminary enquiry by Royal Commission might be necessary to supply the groundwork for a comprehensive statement of the complete and authoritative character required.

PRACTICABLE MEASURES.

Among the measures that would thus become more immediately practicable after federation were:—The admission of Colonial Government securities to the category of investments in which, under British law, trust funds may be placed; the Imperial guarantee of local loans raised for purposes subservient to Imperial ends, such as immigration, dry docks, strategic cables, railways, etc.; the actual opening of the administrative services of the Empire, outside the United Kingdom, by holding local examinations for the Indian, diplomatic and consular services, as now done for the army and navy, and the more frequent appointment to governorships and other high posts of fit persons in whatever part of the Empire they may be domiciled; the selection from time to time of eminent colonial jurists to sit upon the judicial committee of the Privy Council; uniformity in certain branches of statute law, especially commercial law, as, for instance, the law of bankruptcy and merchant shipping, increased facilities for the execution of legal processes, and so forth; uniform Imperial postage and special arrangements for telegraphic service."

The committee, in conclusion, expressed its belief that it will be a matter for great regret if the Imperial Government should fail to take, at the earliest fitting opportunity, the initial step of summoning representatives of the United Kingdom, and of the self-governing colonies respectively to meet and discuss the best means of formulating some arrangement for the future government of the Empire which shall make satisfactory provision for the joint protection of its common interests.

Union Pacific Movements.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—James G. Harris, of Boston, treasurer of the Union Pacific system, with headquarters in Boston, Mass.; E. Dickinson, general manager; Frank D. Brown, local treasurer; J. H McConnell, superintendent of machinery, his private secretary, Charles Coons, and L. W. Hill, a capitalist of Omaha, are in the city. The party have come out leisurely in Mr. Dickinson's private car, and are examining the condition of the railroad's affairs on the Pacific coast. Last night Mr. Dickinson said: "With regard to our steamship lines on Puget Sound, we have definitely decided to discontinue our steamers there, and unless some extraordinary change takes place the Union Pacific's shield will not appear on the waters of that inland sea any longer. The fact is that there is only one paying route now, and that is the route to Victoria via Puget Sound. The Northern Pacific cuts us out of that by their railway connections, and we had to retire. Our steamship business on this coast is now confined to the Columbia river and the line from Portland to San Francisco." Treasurer Harris, who was seen later in the evening, said the finances of the Union Pacific were never in better shape than at the present time. He also said: "It will not be long before the Union Pacific will reach Puget Sound by way of Vancouver, Wash., and in connection with the Great Northern road, and then we shall be independent of everybody, because we have our steamers running from Portland to San Francisco."

Conservative Plans

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The opening of Parliament is still eight weeks distant, but the Conservative party is already on the scene with three amendments to the address in reply to the speech from the throne. The evident object is to test the strength of the Government. A prominent Liberal said to day: "We expect the warmest time any Parliament has had since the discussion of the Reform bill in 1832." The Ministerialists, however, continue to be confident of weathering a division on the address, and even hopeful of passing the Home Rule bill. Another trouble before the Government is the renewed agitation of Irish tenant farmers, for an abatement of the judicial rents fixed four years ago. The tenants have declared that the fall in prices of live stock and farm produce generally makes a revision of the rents imperative. A temporary clause of the act of 1887 empowered the land commission to reduce rents in the ratio of a decline in agricultural prices. The clause was operative for only three years, and expired at a time when it would have done the most good. The Government will ask Parliament to restore the clause exactly as it was.

Satolli Will Settle It.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—Monsignor Satolli, the papal delegate, who has been in this country for some weeks, has been empowered by the Holy See, to hear and decide without appeal all religious questions between bishops and priests in the United States. Whether Satolli was given his authority with particular reference to the dispute which has recently been raging in the Newark diocese between Father Patrick Corrigan and Bishop Wigger, and which now threatens to become still more violent is not as yet known. The result of the power thus conferred upon Satolli will be to place in the hands of that prelate the absolute settlement of the present difference without even the necessity of a trial such as has been determined upon by Bishop Wigger.

The Subsidized Press.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A Paris correspondent gives a list of the sums of money paid newspapers by Rossignol, former auditor, in bankruptcy, as follows:—Petit Journal, 30,000 francs; Telegraphe, 120,000; Jezienski, director of the Telegraphe, 120,000; Le Matin, 50,000; Gaulois, 150,000; Meyer, director of the Gaulois, 30,000; Radical, 100,000; Senator Magnier, director of L'Evenement, 50,000; Patinote, director of the Journal des Debats, 40,000. The last-named denies having received any money, but the other papers make no reference to the exposure.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Right Rev. Charles McDonnell, Bishop of the Diocese of Brooklyn of the Roman Catholic church, was the guest of the Alumni Association at St. Francis Xavier College at an elaborate banquet at the Hotel Savoy this afternoon. An interesting feature of the event was the report of the careers of the bishop's classmates at college, which proved to be a remarkable exhibit. Schoolboy McDonnell had become a bishop, two others of the class are now vicars general, one is a Jesuit Provincial, and recently went to Spain at the head of the United States delegation to participate in the election of the new Superior General of the Jesuits, nine more are priests, scientists or philosophers, and two were re-elected to Congress a month ago.

Severely Scorched.

CRANFORD, N.J., Dec. 5.—Most of the business part of this town was burned last night. Eight buildings with their contents were destroyed. The new opera house block caught fire, but it was soon put out. The fire started in a drug store. The total loss is about $75,000.

Colorless, Emaciated, Helpless

A Complete Cure by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

This is from Mr. D. M. Jordan, a retired farmer, and one of the most respected citizens of Otsego Co., N. Y

"Fourteen years ago I had an attack of the gravel, and have since been troubled with my

Liver and Kidneys

gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat 5 times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I feel well and am well. All who know me marvel to see me so well." D. M. JORDAN.

THE GREAT INTERIOR.

Gleanings of Interest From the Newspapers of the Upper Country.

The Mines and their Prospects---Ranch Echoes---Doings in the Towns.

From the Kootenay Star.]

Between 600 and 700 tons of hay have been brought by steamer Columbia from Little Dalles for Kaslo.

Work commenced on the new sawmill last Monday, just on the same site. It will be in running order early in the new year.

Sites have been promised for the building of a church in several of the news town recently laid out in West Kootenay. Arrangements will be made for services to meet the wants of the people.

The weather has been very mild all the week, and yesterday a thaw set in, with rain. The river is clear of ice, except that fringing the shore, and if this weather continues a few days longer there is no doubt that the Lytton will arrive up. She made one attempt, but had to put back to Robson.

A correspondent of the Star writes: A large jack rabbit (a very scarce animal in these parts) had for some time past been prowling around my garden sampling the cabbage that appeared above the snow. After sizing up this forest beauty I came to the conclusion that he would make a good family dinner. So I proceeded after his scalp armed with a sprig of shillelagh, and after a smart pursuit eventually corralled him in the workshop, where a most exciting hunt took place. Finally I succeeded in putting a quietus on the gambols of Mr. Jack Rabbit.

Another correspondent thus exposes some of the C. P. R.'s little peculiarities in the matter of "sinching" the unfortunate mountaineers: I have just received a carload of hay and oats from Enderby, and am charged by the railway company over $60 for carriage of same. Before purchasing I made inquiries as to the freight charges, and was informed that a carload of hay would be $35 and one of oats $45. But it appears that a mixed carload of only 12 tons is charged $60—nearly double the rate for hay alone. Now, sir, is it any wonder that this town and others similarly situated without any railway competition do not make any progress, when freight charges are so high as to kill all the business enterprise? Sixty dollars for bringing a carload 75 miles is simply extortion.

From the Golden Era.]

The contract for building the new court house has been awarded to Messrs. Houston & Wilson. The building will coast about $850 and be on the lines of the police station at Donald. Sixty days is the time allowed for the carrying out of this work.

We hear that Slade and Wallinger will carry the winter mails from Golden to Windermere, and also that an increased and an improved mail service with the upper country will be in vogue next spring. The rapid growth of population and industries in the country south of us demands this and the Government and postal authorities are not slow to take in the situation.

It is the intention of the Mining Review Publishing Co., of Okanagan Falls, to publish a newspaper there on or about the 5th December. The journal, named the Okanagan Falls Mining Review, will devote its attention to mining news in the interest of the camps of the lower interior of British Columbia, viz., Boundary Creek, Rock Creek, McKinney, Fairview, Granite Creek and Similkameen. Mr. Walter J. Harber, late of the Vernon News, is manager.

From the Inland Sentinel.]

Mr. D. Lloyd Jones and Miss Gartrell, daughter of James Gartrell, of Trout creek, celebrated their marriage recently.

At a dinner provided for the members of Tstnai Lodge, I. O. O. F., by Messrs. Nelson & Unwin, on Friday evening, a handsome jewel was presented to Bro. Clarke, P.G.

About eighteen settlers have made pre-emptions on the south end of Mable lake. A wagon road is much wanted from Finlaison's, on the Shuswap, to this settlement.

Mr. Ross, from the C.P.R. stores, Donald, has gone to Vancouver to take the place of Mr. Frank Devlin, C.P.R. detective and freight tracer, who has been appointed Indian agent.

Mr. J. W. Haskins went west Sunday morning and intends to spend the winter in Victoria, which will be quite a change from his hermit-like life in Lardeau Pass for the last two winters.

The first winter mail from the upper Kootenay country has arrived at Golden, and will leave again on Dec. 5th. Mr. Geo. Geary has taken the countract again, and has a splendid new outfit.

Dr. S. J. Tunstall is medical officer detailed to make daily visits to Huntingdon, on the mission branch, to take precautions against the introduction of smallpox from Washington among travellers from that direction.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Kamloops a grand ball will be given at the new school building on Thursday evening, Dec. 15, 1892. The net proceeds will be devoted to the purposes of the hospital, under the direction of the ladies of the Aid Society.

The party of capitalists from Seattle, taken into the Lardeau by Mr. Blackburn, but who arrived too late on account of the snow, have promised to return next spring and examine the mines. Mr. Blewett, one of the party, is heavily interested in large smelting works at Everett, on Puget Sound.

In explanation of the charge of $22 per ton for smelting the Vermont creek ore shipped from Golden, B. C., by Wells & Pollock to the Tacoma smelter, the manager writes in answer to an enquiry made by the Sentinel:—The large smelting charge was to a great extent due to the large percentage of lead it contained. In our chages for smelting lead ore we have to calculate on the cost of getting the lead bullion refined, and also getting the lead to a place where we can get New York prices, as the statement is figured on a basis of New York quotations for both lead and silver. The cost of getting the lead contained in this ore in shape, and where we could get New York prices for it, would amount to about $15 per ton, which would leave the net smelting charge about $7. If the lead had been figured on a different basis from New York prices, it perhaps would have shown on the statement that the smelting charge was less than the price marked.

NO B. C. MINISTER.

The Colonist has given forth a pitiful wail over the failure of Sir John Thompson to select a member of his Cabinet from among British Columbia's representatives. After examining all the ground carefully, it finds that this failure cannot have arisen from any fault either of the province or of the members. British Columbia is an important part of Confederation, and the gentlemen who represent it are quite capable of furnishing good cabinet timber. It also appears that justice and expediency both require the selection of a minister from this province. Such being the circumstances, who is to blame for the province being unjustly treated? Evidently it is the clique that controls the Conservative party. Yet the Colonist and the six members can always be depended on to bow down and worship that clique whenever occasion offers. If at any time the interests of British Columbia required that its representatives should vote against the Government in the House of Commons, the whole contingent would kick those interests behind them and proceed to "vote right." Their servility is the main cause for the cavalier treatment to which the province is being subjected. It is somewhat remarkable that the portion of the Dominion west of Lake Superior should be called on to furnish only one minister, though the fact that it is new and undergoing development would appear to suggest the desirability of its having special representation in the Government. But this anomaly seems to be only part of a wider anomaly, for if we take the Ottawa river as the dividing line we find that seven members of the Thompson Cabinet come from east of that line and only four from west of it. There are two from Nova Scotia two from New Brunswick, three from Quebec, three from Ontario and one from Manitoba. Besides these, Quebec gets the Solicitor-Generalship and Ontario the two Comptrollerships. Yet the western part of the country, thus politically submerged, contains more than half the population, fully two-thirds the wealth, and more than two-thirds of the enterprise of all Canada. In this country, under Conservative rule, there seems to be something wrong with the well-worn dictum, "Westward, the star of Empire, etc." When a truly progressive party comes into power the progressive part of the country will be given a better chance.

THE INTERCOLONIAL.

A dispatch from Ottawa alleges that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company never made the proposition that the Intercolonial should be handed over to it as a gift. Perhaps not, but the Canadian Pacific's purpose has been served by some other person or persons putting forward the proposition as a "feeler." From the chilly reception with which the "feeler" has met, it is evident the scheme has no chance of going through. The opposition is by no means confined to Liberals; prominent Conservatives like Dr. Weldon, M.P., speak strongly against the proposal. They see clearly enough that it would be unfair and unwise to make a gift of such enormous dimensions to the already heavily subsidized company, and they believe, moreover, that it would be dangerous to the country to increase the company's power so greatly. With such vigorous opposition, it is quite safe to say the proposal will not be adopted, whatever its source. Many eastern papers, of both political shades, still insist that the Intercolonial can be made to pay its way if it is properly managed. It can be properly managed, as we have held, if the Government is not hopelessly given over to corruption. The name of Canada has been badly disgraced by the rascalities perpetrated under the Conservative regime, but the matter will be made much worse if we are obliged to confess that the honest management of a Government railway is an impossibility among Canadians. Are we a nation of rascals, that such a charge can be properly brought against us, and by some of our own people? If Conservative rule has debauched the political conscience to such an extent as this, then our case is well nigh hopeless.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

In another column will be found some details of the scheme drawn up by the special committee of the Imperial Federation League as an answer to Lord Salisbury's challenge to produce "something practicable." We can hardly believe that the people of either Great Britain or the colonies will regard the report as sufficient answer to the challenge. It is hardly to be expected that they will consent to the placing of powers so great in the hands of a council of the kind suggested, and it is difficult to see how any more popular body could be prevented from becoming unwieldly. The Imperial Federation scheme is not yet defended from the charge of nebulosity so often brought against it. A few days ago in commenting on the subject we took occasion to correct a common error by which the "preferential tariff" scheme of the United Empire Trade League was fathered on the Imperial Federation League. The furthering of this scheme is the sole object of the former body, but a perusal of the summary quoted elsewhere and of this further paragraph from the committee's report will show how cautiously the Imperial Federationists deal with the trade question:—

Among the measures which, if not at first practicable, might become more so with the growth of a feeling of permanent unity, the most important would be those connected with the fuller development of inter-Imperial trade and the removal of existing hindrances thereto due to tariff arrangement. The course of events may remove the obstacles at present retarding the interchange of commodities between the countries which constitute the Empire. The sense of the permanence of the political union would naturally induce the people of the various countries in the Empire to make, for the sake of strengthing the union, final arrangements which, under existing circumstances, they are not prepared to adopt.

If political union is first established, some sort of a zollverein may follow—that is all the committee ventures to say. If we remember that some of the most prominent Imperial Federationists are also the most pronounced antagonists of tariff changes in Great Britain, we can easily judge what sort of a zollverein they would favor. It would simply involve the adoption of the British tariff policy by all the colonies. Great Britain would willingly go in for a system of free trade between all parts of the Empire, but how would that suit the Canadian protectionists?

CONSERVATIVE CABINET.

The Victoria Parliamentary Debating Society will meet this evening. The following is the composition of the Conservative ministry as far as known, which is to be submitted to the Governor-General:

First Minister of the Crown, P. A. Vidler; President of the Council, ——; Secretary of State, W. H. Langley; Minister of Justice, J. P. McLeod; Minister of Militia, E. Mallandaine; Minister of Marine and Fisheries, A. D. Crease; Minister of Agriculture, ——; Minister of Finance, J. S. Coltart; Minister of the Interior, R. Erskine; Postmaster-General, R. W. Roper; Minister of Public Works, B. R. Baukins; Minister of Customs, Frederick Davey; Minister of Trade, ——; Minister of Indian Affairs, ——; Minister of Railways and Canals, Onslow Newling.

The new ministry will take their seats for the first time to-night when the First Minister will make a statement as to the line to be followed by the ministry and the bills to be laid before the House.

Leave will then be asked to bring in a bill to amend the new criminal code of the Dominion.

Attired in a slate colored overcoat, wearing a new pair of "kids" and carrying in his hand a leather hat-box, Florian L. Waldeck, the embezzler, walked up the gangway of the City of Puebla yesterday. Waldeck was in the custody of Sergt. Walker, who stuck to him like a bosom friend. The passengers on the San Francisco steamer rushed to the port side to get a glimpse of the much-advertised confidential man of Khan & Co. Waldeck did not look abashed. He carried his head high and the expression of his face was that of cool indifference. This scene was at the outer wharf yesterday morning.

Waldeck walked to his stateroom. There Detective Anthony was in readiness to receive his charge. The order of the court was that Waldeck should be "handed over", to Anthony on board the City of Puebla. When in the stateroom Waldeck did not disguise his pleasure.

"Good evening," he said to the TIMES reporter. "You have come to see me off. Thank you. You may tell the people of Victoria that I am glad to get back to American soil. No more British justice for me. But I have been treated well by the police. Give me your hand Sergt. Walker, and Chief Sheppard also."

Both officials extended their hands and Waldeck shook heartily. The gong sounded for non-passengers to leave the boat.

The Walla Walla this morning brought Jacob Khan and little Oscar Roth, Khan's office boy, to Victoria. They had been telegraphed for when Waldeck was fighting extradition. After they had started Waldeck waived the usual legal proceedings.

Jacob Khan is registered at the Oriental. He says:—"Waldeck swindled me out of $20,000. That is a rough estimate. He has been employed by me since 1884, and his defalcations date back to shortly after the day of his employment. He was my confidential man and bookkeeper. He had power to sign all checks and collect money. I acted as drummer for the United States. He was really the business manager. He is a shrewd, sharp, clever man, and I congratulated myself in having such a man in my employ. Two months before he "skipped" from San Francisco, I discovered that I was being defrauded. Or rather suspected it. A house from which we obtain our goods had sent Waldeck a bill for $700. The bill was posted $600 and a debit entry of that amount had been remitted. The house only received $700 and Waldeck pocketed the $100. I was just then called away from town and on my return begun to look over the books. Waldeck smelt a rat. He signed a draft for $300, cashed it, and sent the office boy for $250 from the bank which he secured in checks. He left the next morning. Waldeck used to live in princely style, far beyond his means. This I did not discover till after he had skipped."

Hugo Waldeck, his brother, is the confidental man of Sack Bros., wholesale fancy goods merchant. Hugo Waldeck is highly respected. "Jake" Waldeck, another brother, married the niece of President Hellman, of the Nevada Bank of San Francisco. And his unble, Louis Scherartzchild, is a partner in a large wholesale toy house. I do not intend to "fix up" matters. I will return to San Francisco this evening.

IS HE A VAGRANT?

George Shanks' Fine Clothing and Diamonds do Not Make Him Legally a Gentleman.

George Shanks, light complexioned, light moustache and broad figure, was up in the police court this morning, charged with being a vagrant. Shanks was attired in fashionable clothing, and a diamond pin decorated a tasty scarf. Constable Cameron swore that Shanks made his living by gambling. He went about from saloon to saloon after midnight, and engaged in games of cards. He had no visible means of support, no permanent place of abode. Lawyer Mills, in a loud voice, asked Officer Cameron who told him to lay the charge? The officer replied that he laid the charge of his own knowledge. Magistrate Macrae here interjected that Officer Cameron was not deaf. Lawyer Mills retorted that he had to address some men in that manner. The court asked the officer if he had seen Shanks enter more than one saloon one night. The reply was, "three saloons." Lawyer Mills asked for the names of the persons playing cards. Constable Cameron did not reply. Magisirate Macrae interfered. He said the names should not be given if they were not relevant to the case. Lawyer Mills would not take the responsibility of asserting such to be the case, and the question was not answered. Constables Walker and Smith were also placed in the box and swore to substantially the same story. Lawyer Mills told the court that there was something behind the charge. He could prove that Shanks had means, and would bring witnesses respectable gentlemen, who would say that they played cards with Shanks.

"It may benefit your client. I adjourn the case until Wednesday morning," said the court.

Chas. Smith, for leaving his horse without being tied, was fined $10.

The Unfortunate Sailors.

We, the crew of the Bankburn, having been left ashore, the question is, what are we to do? Only for the kindness of Jas. A. Lynch, secretary for the Coast Seamen's and Sealers' Union, we would have been starving in Victoria. He, with the assistance of some union men, supplied us with provisions and a place to lay our heads. We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the secretary and the members of the union for their kindness towards their brother sailors. We shall be thankful to anyone who will be able to give us, or one of us, some employment. Martin Hansen, Alex. Anderson, Herman Olsen, Tom Hisloy, Joe Sundberg, William Nichol, Chas. Rignal, Chas. Waldgrehen, Alfred Johnson.

For Several Months.

From seven in the morning till closing time every day in the week, Lange & Co., have been selling their splendid stock of jewelry, etc., away below auction prices, and those who purchase from them are not obliged to compete with others for bargains, and can take their own time selecting what they want. All goods purchased guaranteed. No one will regret buying from them. LANGE & CO., 93 Government street. *

Union Pacific Proceedings.

L. H. Northey, who has just returned from Tacoma, states that the Union Pacific has resumed work on the line from Portland to the straits. The Union Pacific Railway people are building it independently of the Great Norhern, having bought "Jim" Hill out. There is still a prospect of the line being built to one of the points across the straits from Victoria.

A Tramp Demands and Receives.

A lady living in the vicinity of Christ Church was on Saturday frightened by a tramp. His trampship asked the lady if any one else was in the house. Absent-mindedly the lady replied in the negative. "Then give me 50 cents," said the tramp. The lady at first refused, but the tramp persisted and finally secured the half dollar.

The Planter's Cargo.

The remainder of the barkentine Planter's deck load of lumber was taken to the outer wharf on a scow this afternoon. The vessel will be ready to sail next Friday. The packing of her cargo has been better done that when she left the Sound, and it will take a very severe storm to shift any of the deck cargo.

The Union Supports the Sailors.

The sailors of the Bankburn are being fed and housed by the sailors' union. The union has not a deep treasury and feels the charitable burden. Mayor Beaven has been applied to for help.

The Filthy Chinese.

Nine Celestials of Fisgard street will appear in the police court to-morrow (Tuesday) morning, charged with having filthy back premises. Others will also make their debut later on in the week.

Very Instructive.

The mission at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral will close to-night, when a farewell sermon will be preached by Father Linder. The lectures to the married and single men yesterday afternoon were well attended. They were very instructive.

The steamer Yosemite has been put in commission to bring salmon from the Fraser River canneries for the barks Chili, Frederick and River Ganges, which are loading for the U. K. The Yosemite made her first trip to-day.

Important.

Every morning we will sell at private sale any article in our establishment at actual cost. This is for the benefit of ladies and genlemen who cannot make it convenient to attend the auction. Jackson & Mylius, 63 Government street.

Disappointed the Audience.

It was announced that Mr. A. Hawthorne, the basso, would sing at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral last evening, and in consequence a number attended expecting to hear him. For some reason he did not sing, and considerable disappointment was expressed. The same announcement was made some weeks ago and the congregation was disappointed on that occasion.

Received Beter Support.

A larger audience than was present on Friday evening greeted the "Incog" Company on Saturday night at the Victoria. The company again proved their claim to the title of first-class. In the curtain raiser, "The Man About Town," Mr. Dickson showed that he is possed of great talents in other directions besides light comedy. His interpretation of the character of Jack Wetherill, the gambler and man about town, was a fine piece of acting. He was supported rather feebly by the others in the cast. "Incog," as on the previous night caused unbounded amusement. The company appear at Nanaimo this evening.

Whalebacks on the China Route.

In a recent interview Charles L. Colby, of the Northern Pacific Railroad, said: "The plans have been drawn and the orders given for the building of a 4000 ton passenger and freight whaleback at the Everett Steel Barge Works, to be completed by next May. This whaleback will be put on the Tacoma-China route. It will have accommodations for 60 passengers and will carry 4000 tons of tea, silk or other freight, and, when loaded, maintain a speed of 15 knots an hour. It is easy to conjecture the impetus this vessel will give to trading and commercial circles and the influence it will have to draw the trade from Japan and China to Tacoma and the Sound."

The English Gaiety Girls.

The Minneapolis Tribune says of Turner's English Gaiety Girls, who will appear at the Victoria Theatre this evening: George Turner's English Gaiety Girls opened their week's engagement at the Pence yesterday to two large audiences, and every one went away well satisfied. The ladies are all young and pretty, and the wardrobe is gorgeous. The singing of Miss Ella Francis, the premier solo vocalist, is most pleasing. The sisters, La Verne, were encored to the echo. Charles Dunn is a sketch artist of talent. Fred Barth, the eccentric gotesque comedian, fully sustained his reputation as a character and trick comedian. Miss Nellie Russell held the stage for over thirty minutes, and was then compelled to ask the audience to excuse her. The presentation of "Cleopatra" was very fine, and took well also. The "Merry Female Club" sent every one home in good humor.

HELD UP ON THE HIGHWAY.

A Chinese Robbed on Carey Road—The Robbers in the "Cooler."

David Craigie and Peter Cook were arrested this morning charged with highway robbery. Ah Kee was the victim. The robbery was committed Saturday evening about 7 o'clock, on the Carey road within half a mile of the city limits. Ah Kee says the robbers, hidden in the bush, rushed on him. One held him by the throat, while the other rifled his pockets. They took a purse containing $9.75, and drove rapidly away in a horse and buggy waiting for them. Officer Smith arrested Craigie at the Colonial hotel and Cook on the street. Cook confessed to Sergt. Walker. Walker has gone to find the purse, which was thrown away. Craigie is just out from a two years' term for breaking into a store on Johnson street. The case will be heard in the police court to-morrow morning.

Oregon Salmon.

From the annual report of the Oregon state fish commissioners the following statistics of the salmon fishing industry of the state are gleaned: During the season of 1892 402,676 cases of salmon were packed, valued at $2,004,180. About two-thirds of these were from the Columbia. Ten million pounds of fish were consumed at home and shipped, valued at $600,000. Four steamers, ten sloops and 949 fishing boats were employed in this industry and the apparatus employed in fishing is valued at $521,570. On the Columbia river are fourteen canneries employing a capital of $640,000, and the buildings and machinery are valued at $492,055. In the state are twenty-three canneries valued at $557,055, employing a capital of $815,000. There were 3,829 men, including Chinese, employed as fishermen, and they were paid in wages $794,000. The report concludes: "Salmon fishing shows an increase, and if the means provided by nature are aided by scientific knowledge to that extent which the object in view justifies we can have abundance of fish for years to come."

Three Murder Cases.

Supt. Hussey, Sergt. Langley and Officer McNeill of the provincial police leave for Nanaimo to-morrow to attend the assizes. There are three murder cases on the docket, Regina vs. Sing Kee, Regina vs. Jones, and Regina vs. Tarandello. In the latter case about 40 witnesses will be called. There is a very queer coincidence in connection with the cases. Sing Kee, the first named prisoner, killed a brother Celestial; Jones, a colored man, killed another colored man, and Taranello's victim, like himself, was an Italian.

West Coast Telegraph Line.

Supt. Wilson and T. D. Conway, of the C. P. R. Telegraph Company, returned from the West Coast last evening. They made a tour of inspection of the West Coast telegraph line, repairing it where necessary. This morning the wire was down again beyond San Juan. The line is exposed to all the winds of the Pacific, and as soon as it begins to blow down goes the wire.

Provincial Police Court.

Provincial Police Officer Irving had two cases in court this morning. A man charged with having two hen pheasants in his possession was fined $25 and $3 costs, and another individual who had a bottle of whiskey in his possession on the Saanich Indian reserve was fined $50 and $5.25 costs.

For Social Purposes as Well.

At a meeting of the congregation of Emanuel church held Sunday afternoon, it was decided to construct the new Jewish Sunday school house so that it might be used as a social hall. Plans will be submitted at an adjourned meeting next Sunday. The structure will probably cost $2500.

A Big Congregation.

In the First Presbyterian Church last evening Rev. Dr. Campbell preached to marine men. There was a very large attendance, every seat in the church being occupied, while chairs placed in the aisles found ready occupants.

At Auction.

Messrs. Herbert Cuthbert & Co., will sell at auction in their sale rooms tomorrow afternoon a fine assortment of cloth, a consignment of blankets and tea, and a very fine cabinet pianoforte. The sale ought to draw a crowd.

The Gulf Cable.

The C P.R. cable between Vancouver and Nanaimo has been working very poorly during the last few days. Supt. Wilson went up this morning to attend to it.

Will Condemn the Shacks.

It is an open secret that several Chinese shacks in Chinatown will be condemned by the authorities. The city officials have began vigorous action.

Passed Away.

Miss Nettie Turner, sister-in-law of Fireman LeRoy, died on Sunday evening. The remains will be taken to Westminster for interment this evening.

LESSONS OF A STRIKE.

A Rich Man With Ideas on the Relations of Labor and Capital.

The Manner in Which He Would Regulate the Distribution of Wealth.

An affair like that at Homestead educates the public mind rapidly; more rapidly in a month than ten years of books and pamphlets. In the face of death men stop to think.

What led to this? What does it mean? What is the remedy? And when the Daily Journal gives in one column the picture of Cluny Castle, or the magnificent pile from which the Lyttons have gone out to admit partner Phipps from the Homestead mills, and in another sketches showing the dead and dying upon the banks of the Monongahela, the contrast is so sharp that one draws a quick breath of discomfort, and even the most conservative, whose manhood is stronger than his love of dollars admits that something is wrong.

Less than half a century ago the people of the United States were comparatively poor and the wealth of the country distributed with a near approach to equality, less than a dozen individuals having fortunes approaching the million mark. The laws had been made for the existing conditions of labor, and were, as a whole, of a satisfactory character.

No one had yet dreamed of the marvellous inventions and discoveries of natural wealth which were to upset all the conditions of production, and make the succeeding fifty years a wealth-giving period, unprecedented in the history of the world. Anthracite and bituminous coals, petroleum, the cotton gin, the reaper, steam and electricity, with their thousand marvels, were suddenly emptied upon a community whose laws had been made for conditions the very opposite of those now existing.

It is not to be wondered at that the American mind should seize upon the possibilities which old laws gave to individuals for grabbing these new-found treasures. They would have been more than human if they could have resisted the temptation, and, besides, it must be recollected that the Christianity practiced was of a perfunctory character, formal and nominal rather than real, and civilization just beyond the period of wild beast skin wearing.

In fifty years the creation of wealth has become prodigious; the distribution of wealth has become frightful in its inequalities. The laws, which were beneficent for an agricultural and pastoral people, worked degradation and infamy in a manufacturing community. They permitted the few to grab the greater part of this new wealth.

LUXURY AND POVERTY SIDE BY SIDE.

With great fortunes are coming upon the scene an unparallel luxury upon the one hand, and a poverty upon the other, scarcely surpassed in the days when production did not equal one-tenth of the present output. In the strife for wealth the law-making power was found to be a useful auxiliary.

Judges were bought. Senatorships were sold in the interests of railways and the great corporations; and within the last ten years we find wealth—not contented with the advantages which the laws, confessedly in its favor—give it—hiring private armies to give force to edicts allotting to the laborer a lesser share of the product.

Lovers of the Republic may well tremble at this exhibition, so closely resembling the evil days when rich Romans surrounded themselves by hired bands of fighting bullies.

True, our modern rich man does not parade the streets, surrounded by his gladiators. He sits in a secret office, removed from danger and, in communication with the telegraph wires, orders his army concentrated from many states by rapid transit and moves it unexpectedly upon his private foes.

There is lacking that personal courage which gave a half-way excuse to the Roman who, sword in hand, shared the dangers of the fight. But the risk to the Republic is all the greater from these modern methods. For, if a man may hire 300 poor devils ready to shoot down their brothers in misery, there is no reason why he may not hire 10,000.

There is another side to this matter. Raised up under the system which declares that any man has a right to control without limit the earth's surface and its productions, or the labor of his fellow-men, Mr. Frick doubtless feels that he is performing a sacred duty in protecting his property at Homestead by any means that the law permits.

Thousands of good men held the same thought regarding their slaves, before and during the war. It really seemed to them a divine right of property, and all classes of the community to-day, learned ministers and professors, intelligent merchants and high-minded men of all professions hold that our system of distribution is not only legal, but fair, and authorized by the teachings of the Gospel.

There is only one class to dispute this proposition. They are the toilers, whose labor is the immediate cause of the production of our wealth. We may say that there must be intelligence to direct, and that to the intelligence which takes advantage should come the gains.

But Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Frick are proofs that in the ranks of labor itself there is intelligence to direct. Many Carnegies and many Fricks would spring up to-morrow if opportunity permitted.

LABOR'S JOYLESS EXISTENCE.

If one would study the justice of a system of political economy let him surrender his vested rights of property and take his place among those whom the system crushes, whose labor it devours and whose reward for labor is a bare, joyless existence.

We who have the money can reason speciously regarding the justice of our laws, the excellence of our system of government. The laboring man can only groan in spirit. He has not hitherto had the power of his vote, notwithstanding our boasted representative government, because his brothers in the agony which poverty brings, in their effort to relieve the hand-to-mouth miseries of their existence, have sold at each election this birthright for the merest taste of pottage.

Every one knows that this has been true; that the labor vote has never been a unit, that its purchasability has been one of the well-understood factors in ward politics, that there has been no combination, no united effort, no intelligent direction, no willingness to submit to leadership, and that there is today no probability of the vote of these people being cast at an early election for the objects in which they are so deeply concerned.

The issues that are before the public in either of the great political parties for whose candidates the votes will be cast are very largely those which concern the people of means and influence. Platforms are dictated with reference to Wall street and the great corporations and the rich men who supply the sinews of political war.

Nevertheless there is a ground current steadily moving across the continent. Workmen, who were wholly ignorant thirty years ago, are partly educated to-day. Within fifteen years a highly intelligent class has sprung up among the workmen themselves, and there are a few really able men who have been making efforts for their advancement. That man Powderly, for instance, is a statesman of a high order. He has capacity for organization, he has singleness of purpose, he has determination and he has courage. And he is only one of a number. They have been educating their followers, and teaching them to unite upon certain simple propositions. It is like the fencing master who puts in the hands of his pupil the singlestick before he confides to him the glittering rapier.

A CURIOUS INTERVIEW.

That was a curious interview between the commandant of the militia, the gentleman born and bred—with an inheritance of belief regarding the rights to accumulate property, even if in so doing one crowded one's fellow mortal to the wall—and the iron workers who constituted the Homestead committee.

Gold-spectacled, practised in the art of snubbing and sure of the physical strength at his back, the officer was more than a match for the laborer, who in his turn was awed by his inherited respect for wealth and power. Chilled and overawed, the representatives of labor went down the hill from this unequal interview.

The general in charge had neither the grace nor the will to recognize a labor association which embraced a membership large enough, if properly organized, to sweep out of existence the entire army of the United States. They must have reflected, as they went down the hill, these representatives of labor, that if a militia organization carried such weight, permitted such freezing dignity upon the part of a citizen towards other citizens, it might possibly be well for their interests to have a few thousands of their own men enrolled in this same militia.

There is nothing to prevent a body of American citizens from organizing themselves as a militia organization with proper arms and equipments. There are enough workmen in Pittsburg and vicinity to give a hundred regiments of the full complement of ten companies of seventy men each, with as many more left over for onlookers at parades. Six months of hard drill such as the enthusiasm of these men would permit, would leave them equal to the best Philadelphia troops. Does anyone believe for an instant that if there had been a hundred such regiments among the workingmen of Pittsburg General Snowden would have declared that he could not recognize the existence of such a body of men as the Amalgamated Association?

I choose to ask this question as a reducto ad absurdum, in the hope that it will cause my own class, who have power and authority, to stop and reflect that perhaps it will be best to concede something in the way of law, to regulate this one-sided distribution of wealth, lest it should be regulated through bloodshed, or, what is more horrible still, should throw into power through sheer brute force, elements which will bring our Republic to anarchy.—John Brisben Walker, the millionaire editor of the Cosmopolitan, in the New York Sunday Morning Journal.

Our Indebtedness to Carlyle.

We have said that it is for inspiration, not instruction, for moral purification, invigoration, and stimulus, not for definite political and social formulas, that we are indebted to Carlyle. If we are asked what new truths he has taught, or what problems he has solved, we can point to but very few. Yet even when vague in his remedies he saw deeply into the undercurrent evils of the time, and was of use by his protest against leaving these evils to adjust themselves—against what has been called the policy of "drifting," or of dealing with them only by catchwords. No one sets a more incisive brand on the meanness that often marks the unrestrained competition of great cities; no one was more effective in his insistence that the mere accumulation of wealth may mean the ruin of true prosperity; no one has assailed with such force the mammon worship and debauchery of his age. Everything he wrote comes home to the individual conscience; and although his claim to be regarded as a moral exemplar may have been diminished, his hold on us as an ethical teacher remains unrelaxed. If his influence has not been continuously progressive, it has been more marked than that of any of his compeers, among whom he was undoubtedly the most imposing personality.—New York Sun.

—BY—

AUCTION

1150 ACRES,

—IN—

Pitt Meadows

—BY—

A. M. BEATTIE.

Under instructions from the B. C. Dyking and Drainage Co., I will sell at the MARKET HALL, VANCOUVER,

—ON—

Tuesday, December 20,

At 2 p.m., about 1150 acres of the famous Pitt Meadows Lands, in Lots of 18 to 40 acres, to the highest bidder.

REMARKABLE.

This section of country is remarkable:

1st. For its fertility.

2nd. For its close proximity to railroads and water communication to the business centres of the province.

3rd. All the land for sale has been dyked and proved to the public a perfect success. The soil is the richest possible, and the land can only be obtained at public auction, the Dyking Company having decided to place it on the market in this way only. Read the Terms.

PROSPECTS.

The prospects of these lands are large for buyers at this sale.

1st. There is no doubt that at this season of the year the land will sell for less than it is actually worth.

2nd. Buyers will be able to put in a crop and reap a large return next autumn.

3rd. This coming summer will witness Three Direct Steamers from the Fraser River to Vancouver, and they will all stop at Pitt Meadows, it being the intention of a local company to build a new vessel for this route.

4th. I would call the public attention to the fact that a company contemplates putting through the Pitt River Canal, thereby placing Pitt Meadows at the entrance to the city of Vancouver—only a few miles from the best market in the province—where river steamers will ply to and fro daily.

☞ If you want a home think these matters over carefully. Get some of the land the first sale, for

YOU WILL NEVER BUY AS CHEAP AGAIN.

TERMS: One-fourth cash, balance in 1, 2 and 3 years. Only 7 per cent. interest on deferred payments. Ten per cent. at the fall of the hammer, balance of first payment within 15 days, when agreements will be ready for execution, at the Market Hall.

N.B.—Lithographed Maps and Plans will be ready in a few days for distribution, or can be obtained by applying to the auctioneer.

OUR KOOTENAY LETTER.

Winter Sets In Too Soon---The Latest Mining News---A Big Ore-Packing Contract.

From our own Correspondent.]

KASLO, Nov. 28.—A premature winter seems to be the outlook just now, when we never so much needed a protracted autumn. Daily rainfalls have been succeeded by daily snowfalls, until the season has got a month ahead of time. As yet we hold to the belief that the fine weather is not over, and that bare ground and wind will come again.

Between showers and squalls, and sometimes through them, business goes on. Buildings spring up in the town on all streets. The big sawmill runs on with a lively rattle. The Nelson and Spokane, the Ainsworth and the Kaslo arrive with full loads of hay and oats, horses, lumber, bricks, powder, furniture, stoves, provisions, and whiskey. The road is an accomplished fact to this extent, that such work as remains can be finished in any weather. So far as to make a continuous sleigh road from Kaslo to the Freddie Lee mine. The committee and the subscribers to the fund naturally feel that considering the time that they began they have done remarkably well and deserve all the good things that have been said about them.

Mr. G. W. Hughes is clearing away snow to get a foundation laid for a wharf. He is occupying the beach of the inner bay, between the town and the sawmill. A diversion of the wagon road will be made to bring the freight traffic to the shore at that point. Mr. Hughes has contracts for hauling ore this winter which aggregate $85,000.

The latest report comes from the Blue Bird. The tunnel run at a low level has tapped the ledge, strong, well-defined and rich. This demonstrates that the Blue Bird at least is not a "blanket" lode.

Communication between Kootenay Lake and the outer world for the winter months is in bad shape again. A good, safe and comfortable route of travel could have been provided via steamboat and Bonner's Ferry, if the contract for carrying the mails could have been secured in that direction. But this mail contract is in the hands of the Kootenay & Columbia Steam Navigation Co., among whose prominent stockholders are two members of the House of Commons, and this company, while they would not guarantee an all-winter service, persisted in holding on to the contract, asserting that they would run a boat on the Lower Columbia all winter, if possible. Now we hear that the Columbia steamer is making her last trip and that from this on Wilson & Ferdue's pack train will carry the mail. This means that every man who has occasion to go out or to come in this winter must walk or ride a journey of 100 miles, divided into four stages, each one of which must be made in a day, or the traveller must camp out in the snow. The Columbia River, wide and deep and rapid, and probably cold, must be crossed in two places on execrable scows which a slight mishap would upset. The Slocan river must be forded where for 500 or 600 feet the horses, barely able to stand up against the rapid current, half swim and half stagger over the slippery roads, and the Kootenay river, 800 feet wide, has to be crossed on a scow kindly left for the use of travellers free of charge. Here the mail carrier and his passengers dismount from their horses and search under three or four feet of snow for oars and poles with which when found they proceed to navigate a waterlogged raft loaded down with horses, snow and mail bags across to the ruins of what used to be Tom Ward's hostlery. If the passengers were men only the case would be bad enough. But every winter matters of life or death, or of equal importance, have compelled women to make this trip, and these cases involve hardship and exposure shameful to think of. This is the fourth winter that a large, wealthy and influential community has found itself in this position. Every year they have had the assurance from men posing as the leading public men of the country, that the necessities of the case were fully recognized, that the claims of the community were admitted and would be fully met. The men who were ready and willing to give us railway communication were denied by our own representative the right to do so, these representatives guaranteeing to us that they would secure a railway outlet for us on our own soil. These promises have had not a shadow of fulfilment, and the only prospect held out to us now of any improvement next year is this. That the Spokane and Northern railway which three years ago was denied a charter will next year be allowed to build, the understanding now being that the railway company and the steamboat company have made terms with the proprietors of the road across the boundary and thereby converted a scheme which used to be treasonable and suicidal into one in every way legitimate and commendable. The remark of the indignant parliamentarian about patriotism being the last refuge of a scoundrel, has found ample verification in this district. In almost every case the men who labored to place restriction on our intercourse with the people of the States, have been convicted of having direct personal interests in the restrictions they advocated. The portion of the population of Kootenay Lake that is Canadian and British Columbian is greatly outweighted in wealth and numbers by the portion that is American. They have, nevertheless, in the past loyally adhered to the laws and institutions of their own country, and the American citizens have without a murmur accepted the situation. They have paid their taxes. They have been content to live in the country as foreigners, and have shown not the least disposition to tamper with the loyalty of the people, or subvert the institutions of the country. The annexationists and advocates of annexation in the country, if there are any, are the short-sighted and narrow-minded politicians and journalists, who by multiplying restrictions upon trade and intercourse between the two countries are impoverishing and exasperating the people who have it in their power at any time they choose to say the word to vary their form of government.

The desirable properties in the Slocan camp have nearly all fallen into the hands of American citizens; our own people are content to run the side shows of a mining boom. They traffic in town lots, take contracts, run sawmills and steamboats, are applicants for office and licenses to sell whiskey. But they don't mine. If by chance one of them stumbles upon a mine, his only thought is to get it in shape to sell and the first comer buys it pretty nearly at his own price. No doubt we will learn.

Notwithstanding some disappointments the record of this year is one of great progress. One has only to look at the magnificent collection of ore samples that is going from this district to the World's Fair, and then look at the magnificent smelting works rapidly assuming shape, and at the preparations going on at Kaslo Bay for the wintering of 500 horses, to be employed in freighting ores, to see that the prospects of the district are upon a different footing from what they have been in other years. While if one cares to listen to the optimistic predictions of the mining men he can only conclude that in two years from now Kootenay Lake will have a population possessed of greater wealth per capita than any other people on the face of the earth.

BATTERIES INSPECTION.

Annual Inspection of the B.C.B.G.A. at Beacon Hill on Saturday Afternoon.

The three batteries B.C.B.G.A. were inspected on Saturday by Lieut.-Col. Holmes, D.A.G. No. 2 Battery, Lieut. Sargison commanding, had three sergeants and 31 rank and file; No. 3 Battery, Capt. Quinlan commanding, and Lieut. Williams, had three sergeants, two trumpeters, and 34 rank and file; No. 4 battery, Capt. Smallfield commanding, and Lieut. Pearse, had three sergeants and 28 rank and file. The staff was composed of Lieut.-Col. Prior, commanding; Major Nicholles and Capt. P. Æ Irving, adjutant.

The batteries met at the Market building and marched in columns of half companies to Beacon Hill. On arriving at the hill the batteries were drawn up in open order and received the inspecting officer, Col. Holmes, D.A.G., who was accompanied by Capt. Ogilvie as aide and Capt. A. W. Jones, the district paymaster.

The march past having been gone through the parade was taken charge of by Major Nicholles who put the men through the different evolutions. The manual and firing exercises were conducted by Capt. Irving and then the batteries were separately inspected by Col. Holmes.

The inspection was very satisfactory to both officers and men, although they did not do as well for the inspecting colonel as they did for the major.

During the march past Major Nicholles' horse suddenly turned around, throwing the major rather heavily to the ground. The event caused a good deal of amusement among the spectators.

A great deal of ill-feeling has been caused by the action of the Sergt.-Major who, during the inspection, called one of the men a fool. An officer, it is considered, should be a little more careful as to how he speaks to the men.

The big gun inspection commences this evening with No. 2 battery, Lieut. Sargison. To-morrow evening No. 3, Captain Quinlan, will be inspected, and on Saturday evening, No. 4, Capt. Smallfield, will receive their inspection.

In addition to the cup offered by Col. Prior for the battery obtaining the largest number of marks for the whole inspection, the officers will give nine cups to the battery that ranks first.

Odds and Ends.

Thirty-four pounds of raw sugar make twenty-one pounds refined.

The bronze cents, such as are in circulation now, were first coined in 1864.

Alaska has yielded $33,000,000 in sealskins. Russia sold it to the United States for $15,000,000.

A farmer living near Furlong, Pa., dug up 110 stone knives in his garden the other day.

A New Jerseyman gives as a new cure for hay fever the smoking of pine needles with tobacco.

In 1790 three patents were issued in the United States; 100 years later the number was 26,292. The total number of patents granted during the 100 years was 453,944, or an average of nearly thirteen patents for every day.

Duran's Portrait of Mrs. Ayers.

Mrs. Ayers, the wealthy New York widow, has had her portrait painted by Carolus Duran, and the probabilities are that Mrs. Ayers now regrets it very much. The lady is seated on a sort of throne, covered with antique tapestry. She is robed in heavy velvet of an indescribable hue and a heavy purple mantel, bordered with Russian sable, falls from her shoulders. Velvet shoes are on her feet, and the artist's love of color is further illustrated by the revealing of a bright red pair of stockings. The English papers allude to the picture as "Queen Crœsus," and criticise Duran for representing the estimable Mrs. Ayers in this fashion and missing all her sweet and womanly characteristics.

Yankee Jingoeism.

A man of ordinary appearance and fairly well dressed, looking like a downtown business man, perhaps a merchant, or a manager, or a lawyer, or a steamship agent, or a manufacturer, came into the counting room of the Sun yesterday on business, wearing in the upper buttonhole of the left-hand side of his light-colored summer coat a miniature American flag, measuring about an inch one way and a half inch the other. He had a manly look. There was American independence in his countenance and style. He was evidently proud of his country and its flag. He gave evidence of this fact in his face when he noticed that the symbol which he wore in his buttonhole was observed. Perhaps his wearing of this dainty American symbol offered an example that may be useful in these times. The man was unknown to us, but we are strongly disposed to guess that he is a true American patriot, whether he was born in this country or any other. The American flag has a meaning, and its meaning ought to be known to every person who has the privilege of living under it.—New York Sun.

Not an Immortal, But Making Money.

More than 1,300,000 of Zola's novels, exclusive of translations, have been sold. It is not surprising to learn that "Nana" heads the list with 160,000 copies, for weeds grow fastest in literary as well as in other fields. The great royalties which these enormous sales must yield the author ought to console him for the injury done his vanity by the Academy in refusing him admission to the ranks of the "Immortals."
